This text was written at a beginning of first grade level (based on the phonics skills and sight words chosen). The length of the text may be longer than your child is accustomed to. My advice is to read the text TO your child on the first day. On subsequent readings, you can offer to share the reading, taking turns. Gradually release the responsibility and limit support as it is re-read.

The world was sick with sin.
Man did not do what God said and He was sad He had made man. God said it looked grim.

But God saw Noah. He was a good pick because he did right.

God said, "The sky will split open and rain will spill from it. It will fill the world and kill all men and animals. But this will miss your family. Make a big ship, an ark."

God told Noah how to make the ark, inch by inch. It was not to be made of bricks, tin, or thin twigs, but thick wood.

Noah did all God told him because he knew this was not a trick. The job was not quick, but Noah did not quit.

When the ark was done, God brought all the animals to Noah. God shut the lid. The ark hid Noah's family and all the animals. They fit just right.

The sky spilled rain. It did not rain a little bit. Rain fell for 40 days and nights and it filled the world to the brim.

All the big hills were under water. All men and animals of the land were killed.

Finally, it was time to zip the sky and the rain stopped. God sent a big wind. When He did, the water went down and Noah could see land.

God said, "Come out of the ark and bring the animals with you." God sent a rainbow in the sky to tell Noah that He would not fill the world with rain again.
